

The Mass Wing Sentinel

Volume I, Issue 7

Special Encampment Edition

07 August 04

Home stretch

Francois is Home

In an emotional ceremony, the cadets and seniors of the 2004 MAWG CAP encampment welcomed their beloved mascot, Francois home today.

Praising the courage of both Francois and his deliverer, the commander Lt. Col Earl Shepard stated, "It was the teamwork demonstrated by the members of this encampment that brought Francois home. The dedication to training and the unswerving belief that we would succeed should be an inspiration to all members of CAP."

Unfortunately, Francois collapsed immediately after the brief ceremony. Fearing a relapse, the medical staff surged forward and began working feverishly on him. When he regained consciousness, heard to say, "After that kiss, I think I would rather be in the hands of the BSA."

Obstacle Course

Mess Hall

Cadet Champney's favorite thing at encampments is drill. Champney is in AFJROTC. In his program, you do not need an encampment to become an officer. He came to the encampment to better his leadership skills and drill skills. Later in life he is going to join the marines to do special operations.

Cadet Eder enjoys encampment a lot. He is interested in going to Ranger School, and later in life he would like to go into the military to become an Army intelligence personnel.

Below are cadets at chow waiting for other cadets to fill up the table in order to eat. Every eats at the same time while at the same table

Today's weather
75*/Clear skies

Tomorrow's Pass-in-Review Forecast
78*/It never rains during pass-in-review

Tomorrow's UOD
Dress Blues

Right:
First Sergeant Tagan Models the UOD

Encampment Pictures

